THE PUBLIC IN NATIONAL CONVENTION

To the Republicans, Citizens of the United States:

In accordance with usage and obedient to the mandate of the Republican National Convention of 1884, a national convention of the Republican party of the United States will be held in the city of Chicago, on Tuesday, the 19th day of June, 1888, at 12 o'clock, noon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice President, to be supported at the next general election, and for the transaction of such other business as may be proper for action.

Republicans of the several States will not fail to appreciate the importance of the duties devolving upon them in the selection of delegates to this convention. Every citizen who believes in the principles of the Republican party, who desires to see the National Government administered in accordance with those principles, who is opposed to the free coinage of silver, to the Mormon system of polygamy, to the Mexican pension steal, to the Louisiana lottery, to the nullification of the election laws in the South, to the importation of contract labor, to the Chinese immigration which would strike down American labor, to the lack of discrimination and opportunity for workingmen which favor a system of forty millionaires and nobody else, to the existence of trusts and monopolies which enable the few to prey upon the many, to the failure of the United States to control its own commerce, to the neglect of the navy, to the hostility to our manufactures which has been shown by the present Administration, to the tariff taxation which is rapidly piling up a surplus in the National Treasury, to the failure to provide for the payment of the debts of honor due to the soldiers and sailors who preserved the Union, to the failure to pass such a service pension bill as the soldiers and sailors of the Union ought to have, to the failure to pass such a law as will prevent the dumping of the pauper labor of Europe upon our shores, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the rights of American citizens at the ballot box, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the rights of American citizens in the Territories, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the admission of the Territories into the Union as States, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the admission of the District of Columbia into the Union as a State, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Senators of the United States by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Presidential Electors by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Representatives in Congress by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the National Republican Convention by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the State Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the County Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Congressional District Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Senatorial District Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Legislative District Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Ward Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Township Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Borough Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Election Republican Conventions by the people, to the failure to pass such a law as will secure the election of Delegates to the Primary
